

Leadership & Management

Category Description

Senior executives across Canada consider leadership capability to be one of the most pressing challenges facing their organizations, affecting employee engagement and retention, organizational culture, and the bottom line. Forward-thinking leaders know they need to develop their staff to enhance their leadership pipelines. Proactive employees with leadership aspirations understand the importance of supporting their technical expertise with leadership competencies.

The Ontario Engineering Academy's professional development catalog puts new and emerging leaders on solid footing so they can guide their organizations in the future and helps experienced leaders hone their skills. Our training partners are not only authorities in their fields, but they also understand the unique needs and perspectives of the engineering profession. Incorporating case studies, exercises, and projects based on actual engineering scenarios, our experts conduct learning events that engage and challenge participants, providing them with resources and fostering practical skills they can apply immediately.
